

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image display device capable of displaying high quality images and preferably of reducing manufacturing cost. The image display device is provided with mechanism for controlling the illuminating state or non-illuminating state and a constant voltage supply to each pixel through a signal line when the illuminating state is selected for the pixel.